

CHINESE STUDENT THE MASTER MIND FOR TONGS' PEACE

Hin Wong Has Neglected
Work in Columbia to Bring About Harmony.

TWO DIFFICULTIES YET.

Indemnity to On Leongs and Regulation of Fan Tan
Graft Still Unsettled.

If the white wings of peace are finally spread over Chinatown, and the historic tragedy of the warring tong is brought to a happy issue, Hin Wong, Columbia student and pillar of the Chinese Presbyterian Church, 111 East Thirty-first street, ought to be a candidate for the next Nobel peace prize.

Without the aid of a $10,000,000 Carnegie Foundation he has for more than a month neglected his university studies and his work as a Chinese reporter to work for harmony among those of his race. Hin has not merely done the largest work of the peace movement—he has done very much of the headwork as well.

He is the official secretary of the Chinatown Peace Commission, a body of merchants, preachers, students and others, which has had two meetings in the rooms of the Chinese Merchants' Association, No. 16 Mott street, and will have another one tonight. The real work of making the peace is entrusted to the hands of a sub-committee, and Hin Wong is mostly it.

Not Yet Accomplished.

"No," said he to-day to a reporter for The Evening World, "I am sorry to have to say that peace is not yet an accomplished fact and it is highly improbable that any dinner to celebrate peace can be held as early as Thursday night."

"The peace commission has encountered two great obstacles, two points upon which the rival tong have not yet been able to agree. One is the present outlook the settlement may be delayed several days."

Hin Wong refused to tell what the still unharmonized differences were, and declared that the accounts of the peace proceedings which have appeared in various newspapers have greatly embarrassed the commission.

The Four Brothers and the On Leongs are in an extremely sensitive state of mind. Many of them think they are having the riot act read to them and do not relish the idea of being pushed up into the limelight and forced to kiss each other.

Furthermore the members of the peace commission are in a ticklish position to avoid the traditional fate of the peace-maker—uniting the adversaries on the single point of hatred of the interlocutors.

Indemnity and Graft.

It is believed that of the two stumbling blocks in the immediate path of peace, one concerns the kind and amount of indemnity to be paid by the On Leongs and the other the regulation and collection of assessments upon the gambling houses of Chinatown. The real caput belli in the tong war is the revenue from the game of fan tan.

COINERS CONFESS THEY'D FLOOD CITY WITH COUNTERFEITS

Three Rounded Up in Brooklyn
Raid Tell of Biggest Recent Plot.

After spending four hours in extorting a complete confession from their prisoners, Secret Service agents this afternoon arraigned three alleged counterfeiters, who had been caught last night in a Brooklyn raid, before United States Commissioner Morie. The Commissioner sent each to jail in default of $10,000 bail, and the detectives hurried out to make more arrests, being confident that they now know the names of all the men implicated in one of the most extensive conspiracies to flood this vicinity with bogus metal currency that has been uncovered in a long time.

Mystery was made of the identity of one of the prisoners, the detectives saying if his name were revealed it might interfere with their plans. One prisoner gave his name as Jacob Dross, thirty-six, of No. 78 Johnson avenue, and the other Frank Spielberger, thirty-five, of No. 161 Varet street. The detectives say Dross was leader of the gang.

Agent Taylor finally told the reporters to call the third prisoner, "Dave Samuels." He admitted also that Samuels had been caught at a house on Lavonia avenue, in Brownsville.

"Samuels told us," went on Taylor, "that he had been a counterfeiter all his life. He started in Russia, where for years he manufactured bad rubles. Finally the Russian police got hot on his trail and he fled to this country and organized a gang here. He made most of the moulds and did much of the expert mechanical work in connection with the operations of the group.

Complaints From Banks.

For some time complaints have been made by the Brooklyn banks and the Sub-Treasury that a great quantity of counterfeit pieces, ranging from 10-cent pieces to silver dollars, were in circulation. Then Secret Service Agents Klink and Wirsburt were told to find where this spurious money was coming from.

Klink and Wirsburt traced it to Brooklyn and finally became suspicious of Spielberger. They watched him for a week. Last night they arrested him and, after questioning him, they say he confessed, and that they found two big bags containing counterfeit money in Spielberger's house.

Spielberger led them to the house of the man whose name was given as Samuels. This man was arrested and locked up in the Adams street station. The secret service agents and Spielberger then went to Dross's house, where it was said the counterfeiting was done. This was a three-story building in the rear of the Johnson street address.

When Spielberger gave the secret knock on the door Dross, say the United States agents, opened the door with one hand and with the other held a ladle filled with molten metal. Klink and Wirsburt had their revolvers drawn and rushed in.

The detectives say they found in three of Dross's rooms about fifty plaster moulds, a charcoal stove, half a dozen coolers and about two hundred pounds of metal in the rough. Two patrol wagons were required to carry the outfit, together with the bogus money, to the Adams street station. Some of the coins found heaped about the Johnson avenue house were awaiting stamping. Most were spurious quarters.

The money has been put in circulation for four months and street car conductors, elevated roads and pushcart men were the principal victims.

First Clue in Paterson.

An arrest in Paterson, N. J., more than two months ago, furnished the clue that finally led the searchers to Brooklyn. Although there was not a particle of silver in any of the bad money—antimony, tin and zinc being the only constituents—the work was so skillfully done that in some instances banks are said to have been imposed on.

King at Mount Vernon.

Willie Howard and Tommy Nelson will meet in the main event of ten rounds at the weekly stage of the Dexter A. C. of Mount Vernon to-night. In the semi-final Eddie Marston will meet Young Ketchel for six rounds.

"Shoo-Fly!" Says Gaylor.

"Don't burden me with such nonsense," said Mayor Gaylor to-day when asked concerning rumors that Police Commissioner Cropper and First Deputy Priscoll were to quit the Police Department on Jan. 1.

BANKER'S LIFE THE COST OF SAVING A HORSE.

R. Winder Johnson, Head of Philadelphia Firm, Hit by Ambulance, Dies in Hospital.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 28.—Surrounded by members of his family, R. Winder Johnson, head of the banking firm of Lawrence Johnson & Company of this city, who was knocked down and injured by an automobile ambulance of the Woman's Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals last night, died in a hospital to-day.

Mr. Johnson was crossing Chestnut street when the big ambulance with a sick horse in it came dashing down the street and ran him down. His skull was fractured and one of his legs was broken. The driver of the ambulance was placed under arrest. Mr. Johnson was fifty-six years old.
